

What to Do After Completing The Gospel Tool

Congratulations! You've now (or will have in the future) completed the Gospel Tool, which is a significant milestone on your journey of discipleship with Christ. We hope that, at this point you're asking, "What's next?" Here are some suggestions for next steps:

- Continue to have GT groups meet every month or so. Group participants have developed a sense of fellowship with their brothers and sisters in Christ over these past few months. Continuing to meet will keep building momentum for discipleship.
- Throughout the GT journey, participants have been praying for a number of people. Encourage them to ask the Lord if He may be inviting them to lead some of those people through the GT. They should continue to pray for them, regardless!
- Have you found the GT to be helpful for your church? If so, then consider using the GT as your church's core discipleship pathway. This will be key for building in your church a culture of discipleship for years to come.
- Consider holding a celebration worship service around the completion of the GT, in which participants share testimonies of how they've grown from their engagement on the GT journey. This worship service could be followed by a meal shared by the entire congregation.
- Continue to run GT-Groups annually, so that eventually all members of your church have the opportunity to go through it. The long-term hope and vision is that there is always a desire to be obedient to Jesus and to go and make disciples. We believe that using the GT materials will light a fire in believers for evangelism, discipleship and prayer.
- If you want to be more effective in making disciples and introducing people to Jesus, then the empowerment of the Holy Spirit is essential.
